To Whom It May Concern:

As Head of English and Drama at Kiangsu Chekiang College International Section (2008-2015) and currently Leader of Learning for the English Faculty, French International School, it is my pleasure to offer a personal character reference for Martin Maggiore. As a close companion of Martin, I have been impressed with his enthusiasm, creative approach and love of Drama, not to mention his desire to accomplish success in the teaching profession and endow these values in the younger generation.

Martin and I have had numerous conversations regarding the teaching of English and Drama including the best approaches to use and the most effective ways to help pupils learn. One noticeable feature of Martin's character is his willingness to adopt different approaches to teaching and learning in an effort to achieve the most effective way to deliver and attain pupil learning outcomes. Martin is very keen to achieve the best, both in himself and his pupils, and he will constantly seek ways to achieve this. In addition to this, Martin's willingness to receive advice and self-evaluate is particularly commendable. This is an admirable trait to have for the teaching profession and I wish him all the best for his future.

Yours faithfully

Drew Wilson
